Audio transcripts

"I was waiting for my friend in the front of a shop. A guy stopped and started talking to me, asking for my name and if I had a boyfriend. I said it was none of his business and he got angry and shouted that I was a slut. It was a busy street and there were other people walking by but no one did anything."

"It happens sometimes at school, too. The other day, a guy from my class tried to snap my friend's bra open when he was sitting behind her. All his friends were laughing, they make it seem like it's no big deal."

"On my way to the gym I have to walk past a McDonald's. There are always a few older guys hanging out at the entrance. When I walk by, they make sexual noises and one time a guy shouted 'nice ass' after me. I don't know why he did that, it's not a compliment, it's gross."

Discussion

- What kind of behaviours are these young women describing?
- Why do you think they make them feel uncomfortable?
- How often do you think this happens to them?
- Do you know a word to describe these behaviours?

Sexist harassment – a definition

Any unwanted sexual behaviour that makes someone feel upset, scared, offended or humiliated, or is meant to make them feel that way.

Sexist harassment can be verbal, physical, or both. It doesn't need to be sexual touch. It can be on the knee or around the waist. Sexist harassment can also happen online – for example, if someone shares an intimate picture without consent.

3 Steps – How to step in

- 1 Distract him
- 2 Support her
- 3 Get help

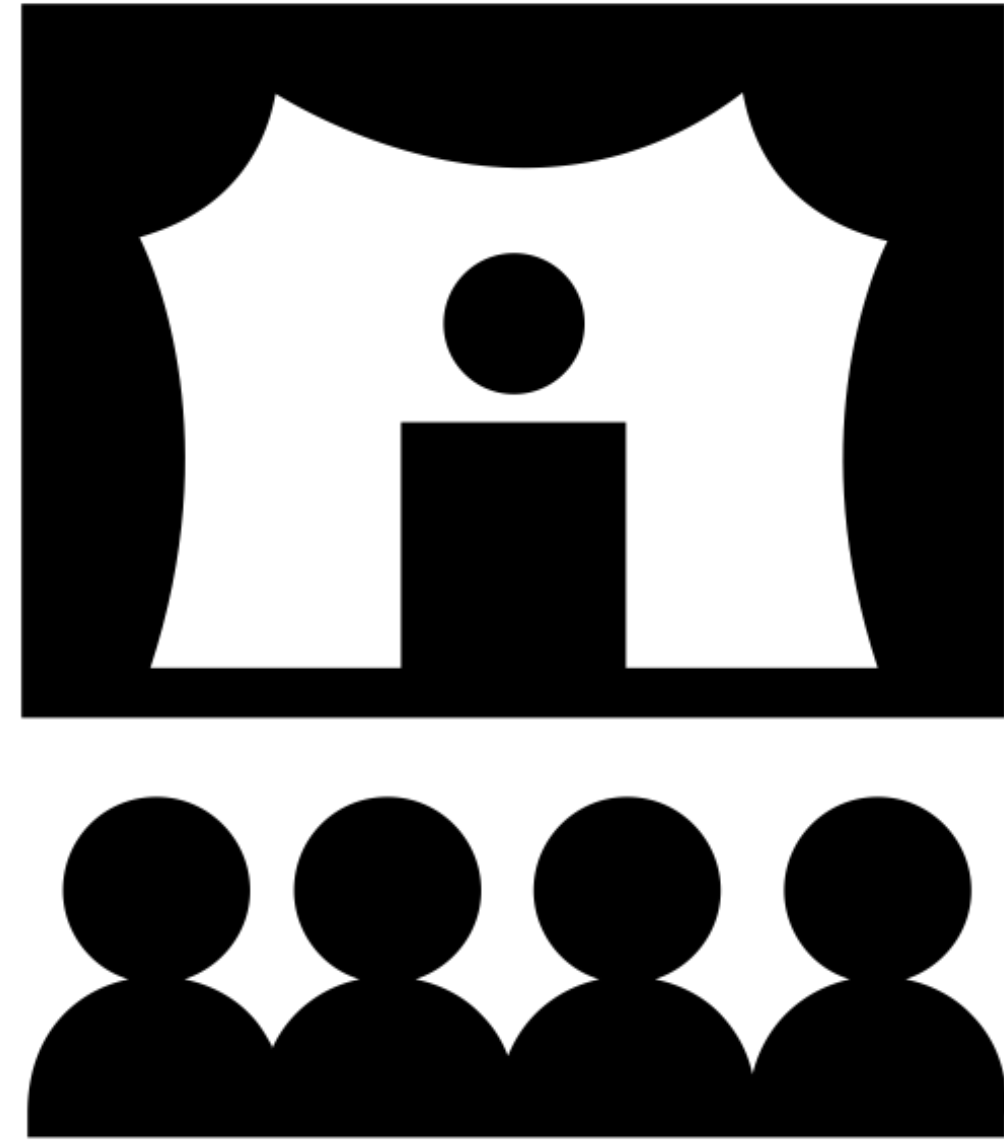

Exactly how you should step in will vary from situation to situation. Safety always comes first.
